SOUTH PARIS NEWS

Mrs. Charles L. Buck
After an illness of about twenty weeks, Mrs. Edith A. Buck, wife of Dr. Chas. L. Buck, died at her home in South Paris Tuesday evening, June 7. Mrs. Buck had been much subject to periods of illness for years, and in her final illness was under the care of two trained nurses for weeks.

Mrs. Buck was the daughter of Dr. Jas. W. and Mary (Dove) Davis, who was born in Paris Feb. 3, 1872, and except for a few years in early life, had always been a resident of the town. In 1890, Mrs. Buck married Dr. Buck, who has been in the practice of dentistry in South Paris for many years. They had seven children, of whom three died at six or seven years of age, and three in early infancy.

Besides her husband, she is survived by one daughter, Aylrie, wife of Raymond S. Gates of Paris. She is also survived by one brother, Edward Davis, and one sister, Annie, wife of Arnold Hatfield, both of Loomis, Mass. There are three grandsons, Lloyd Stanley and Jackson Gates, all of Paris.

Mrs. Buck was a member of the Methodist Church of Portland, a member of the Auxiliary of the South Paris, and a member of the Auxiliary of Canton. Alfred S. Kimball. She was for many years a member of the Golden Cross.

The funeral was held at the home Thursday afternoon, attended by Rev. H. L. Nichols of Skowhegan, a former pastor of the South Paris Methodist Church. The burial place was in the cemetery closed during the funeral hour. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery.

Baccalaureate Service
Twenty members of the graduating class of Paris High School and a large number of interested persons, including Rev. E. B. Tettey on "Life's Endurance" in Association Hall, Tuesday evening, June 13. Rev. O. E. Bryant and Rev. J. S. Tettey assisted in the services. The members were the boys of the Junior Class.

The stage was decorated with ferns, lilies and butternuts and very attractive. There was special music by the Baptist choir, composed of Mrs. Alton O. Wheeler, soprano; Mrs. R. C. Dennison, alto; C. A. Church, tenor; L. W. Titus, bass. Miss Stella W. Burman was at the piano for the selections by the choir, and for the march of the class.

"Agnes Dei" was also sung by selected girls' voices, Dorothy M. Barstow, Bebe, Susan Taylor, Mabel Slattery, Reba Shaw, and Kathryn Green with Mrs. Neal at the piano and violin obligato by Miss Manly.

Albion Pratt was marshal of the class which marched to seats reserved at the front of the hall. They were twenty in number, and all in caps and gowns. The juniors had seats in the same section. Inspirational address was practical and a direct appeal to the highest and best in us. Team work was emphasized. The less time spent in drifting, the better. Ideals are not attained by inaction, but enthusiasm is needed to seek ideals and to follow a definite course. In summing up the speaker defined the word enthusiasm as, "God in us." Live up with the Christian Church, which is, except for the home, the greatest agency for good.

Rev. Edward A. Morris will supply the Congregational pulpit on July 10 and Rev. A. T. McWhorter will preach on July 17. Both are former pastors.

W. H. Harriman and "Bob" Hicks made a canoe trip from Harrison down Long Lake and Songa River to Falmouth Saturday and Sunday. Weather was wind and rain, and a small sailer relieved paddling most of the distance. The route was some 52 miles.

The children's day will be observed at the Universalist Church next Sunday. There will be a baptism of children with Rev. Stanley Manning of Augusta present to assist the pastor, O. E. Bryant.

The play, "Laff That Off" was the opening attraction by the Trumbull Players at Assembly evening, Tuesday. The company has started the season's work on this circuit with a strong cast and will appear one or two every week. A local orchestra played popular selections for the overture and between the acts.

Miss Ruth Winslow was given a surprise birthday shower, Thursday evening, at the home of Mrs. Irving O. Barrows, who arranged the details. The party was in honor of Mrs. Winslow's approaching marriage to Gordon Field. The gifts came from a June box, brought by the guests. Refreshments were served in the dining room, the centerpiece being a bouquet of snapdragons.

Shaw's Band will give a concert in the Square, Tuesday evening, June 21, weather permitting. A dance in Academy Hall, Paris Hill, will follow, with Shaw's Orchestra furnishing music.

Shaw's Orchestra will play at the banquet and ball at West Paris this Thursday evening and for the Paris Alumni banquet and ball at Grange Hall on Friday evening. They are at North Buckfield Grange Hall, June 24, and every Friday night thereafter.

Colony of Star Observers Coming to Lake Pennesseewassee

Opportunity to Hear Mr. Campbell of Harvard College Lecture on Astronomy

As in the past seasons, the chief officers of the American Association of Variable Star Observers are expected to visit our vicinity through the month of August. In addition to this little colony, Leon Campbell of the staff of the Harvard College Observatory will be present with his family on the west shore of Lake Pennesseewassee near Dr. Godfrey's cottage. It is proposed that Mr. Campbell give three public lectures during his stay in our midst. He is specially equipped as he has access to the several hundred thousand photographs of celestial objects and spectra which has been many years in the making at the old famous Harvard Observatory, and lantern slides will be used. This is a rare privilege offered to the public to acquaint it with some new and wonderful facts and discoveries concerning the mysteries of the boundless universe.

A normal charge for admission would be made to meet expenses. If the response is favorable from the public, it might be possible to have these events in future seasons. The various clubs and out of town sections are invited to support this project.

Many fascinating facts are more and more being reported in the magazines and large newspapers and it is profitable to get acquainted with the fundamentals of the structure of the universe for better understanding.

Heard and Seen at Advertiser Office

The other day we noticed the grass about the Advertiser buildings looked rather unkept. Julian Brown came along about that time and his services were secured for the lawn. He had a lawnmower and when he finished up, the job was well done and a big improvement.

Vincent Astorinus the business manager of the Oxbow and brought in a check Saturday, in settlement of the June number. This issue proved one of the best and sold well, and Vincent said the bills were paid in time in pennies, dimes and quarters, and small bills—but now one check is drawn for the full amount of the bill. This issue was a 76 page book about the history of the town, and very fittingly dedicated to the late Dr. B. F. Bartlett and Burton Crocker.

U. W. Nelson, M. D. of Norway, is taking advantage of the "Intelligence Column" on page 4, having several household articles to sell. "Run the ad three weeks," he said. He said he had also left an order for printed cards and letter paper.

Alfred Bradford, for the Norway Laundry, put an ad in "Intelligence Column" having for sale an ironer and a carpet.

Edwin M. Rowe of Bryant Pond was here recently and, in passing, he said his place at Bryant Pond for sale. The place is a beautiful one and finely situated. See ad in this issue.

Obituary

W. Freeman Lord

W. Freeman Lord of Auburn, who died suddenly on Friday, June 10, will be remembered by many of the older people here. The late Coleman Lord of Norway was his uncle, and he frequently visited with the family. A cousin, Mrs. Vera Lord Kilgore, of this town, and a daughter, Martha Joe Verrill, are the only surviving relatives.

Mr. Lord was almost 78 years old, born in Auburn on July 29th, 1848, near Essex, Me. His father was Samuel Lord, born in Norway, in 1828; his mother was Ann Sarah Cobb, both of them of old Maine families, passing their lives upon the farm.

When a lad, Mr. Lord went to Auburn to work in the shoe factories. He entered the shoe of the Oak Oshman, one of the pioneers of the shoe manufacturing industry in Auburn and was with them in various capacities from 1865 to 1904, beginning as office boy and being a member of the firm and occupying a managerial position as head of a department at the time of the reorganization of the business.

Mr. Lord was a member of the Grand Lodge of the Grand Lodge of Maine in 1893, and was Junior Grand Master in 1893 and 1894. He was also a member of the Grand Lodge of Maine and was Junior Grand Master in 1893 and 1894.

He had been a member of the Council, Comptroller, Shrine, Blue Lodge, and Chapter of Masonry and in the Scottish Rite bodies such as Rose Croix Lodge of Perfection, Prince of Jerusalem, and Maine Council, he was one of the leading workers. For years, he was Master of the Leviston Lodge of Perfection, was for years a member of the Board of Trustees. He was Junior Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Maine in 1893 and 1894. In 1893 he was Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Maine and was Junior Grand Master in 1893 and 1894.

Mr. Lord was elected to the 33rd degree in 1912. He always attended its sessions and was influential in its representation in Maine.

The Seventh Annual Minstrel Show presented at Norway Opera House, Thursday and Friday evenings, June 9th and 10th, under the auspices of the W. H. H. Lesson for June 19

PETER TEACHES GOOD CITIZENSHIP

TEMPERANCE LESSON.
LESSON TEXT—1 Peter 2:11-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Love worketh no law to the righteous. Rom. 13:10.
PRINCIPAL TOPIC—Peter Tells Us How to Behave.
STORY TOPIC—Rules for Right Living.

EXPLANATORY AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Makes a Good Citizen.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Character of a Good Citizen.

In order to get an intelligent grasp of today's lesson, one must get a view of the entire epistle as to its purpose and method. The purpose is to instruct all who were passing through tribulation and testing (see ch. 1:7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13).

The principles of Christian behavior set forth in the text of this lesson are of broader scope than citizenship. They embrace:

1. Behavior as Pilgrims and Sojourners (vv. 11, 12).

Christians are merely sojourners on the earth. They have not here their permanent home but are journeying through the earth on their way to the eternal home in the heavens. Our leaving is certain (Phil. 3:20).

2. Behavior as Citizens (vv. 13-17). While the Christian's true citizenship is in heaven he has a responsibility as a citizen on the earth.

1. Obey all requirements of civil rulers (v. 13).

Fidelity to Christ is shown by loyalty to civil authority. The intelligent Christian recognizes the necessity of government and graciously submits to those in authority over him regardless of the form of government.

His duties as a citizen he performs as the Lord's free man—not through servile fear. Government even of a low order is better than anarchy.

2. Honor all men (v. 17).

He will see in every man the image of God and therefore give honor to him. This applies to all relations wherein we touch human life.

3. Love the brotherhood (v. 17).

The Christian has a peculiar love for those who are of the same household. The brotherhood is composed of all those who are children of God by faith in Jesus Christ.

4. Fear God (v. 17).

5. Honor the King (v. 17).

This has a peculiar significance because in all probability the wicked Nero was then reigning as emperor.

II. Behavior in a World of Opposition (1 Peter 4:1-5).

1. Armed for the conflict (v. 1).

Christians are engaged in a tremendous conflict with evil forces within and without. Satan and his angels are bent on the believer's defeat and destruction. The only way to keep from being overcome with his darts is to arm oneself with the mind of Christ.

2. The salutary effect of suffering (v. 1).

Suffering has a remedial effect upon God's children. The one who suffers with Christ as an example will have the consciousness that it is his identity with Christ that calls forth the expiation of the world.

3. The lusts of the flesh, but the will of God is the directing force of his life (v. 2).

4. The consciousness of a wasted life (v. 3).

Since the flesh has so long had sway over the life, God is entitled to the rest of the believer's energy. Looking back upon a wasted life in serving the lusts of the flesh will move one to give no more time to serving such a master.

5. The attitude of the world toward the one who separates himself from it (v. 4).

The world speaks evil of those who will not go its way. The world not only wonders at the life of the Christian who separates himself from its pleasures, but will heap upon him accusations and reproach.

6. Account shall be given (v. 5).

The Christian should so live as to be able to render an account to God.

The Joy of Christ
O believer, the joy of Christ is within you; give it room, let it spring up within you like a well of living water, and you will rejoice in the Lord always, and again rejoice.—G. H. C. McGrew.

Praising God
When you find a man has got to praising God it is a good sign. Oh, let us get to personal love, to personal praise! That is what is wanted in the church today.—D. L. Moody.

DESPITE THOSE WHO BRAY THEIR PESSIMISTIC IDEALS ON THE THRESHOLD OF NEW AND GREAT

Address Recently Delivered by Editor M. S. Sherman

We are told that at the time of Job he was the greatest of all the men of his generation. He had 7,000 sheep and 3,400 oxen. He had 700 mules and 500 she-asses and 500 yoke of oxen and 500 she-asses and a very great household. These were taken from him. Afflictions without number were visited upon him. In one of his lamentations he cried to God: "What is my strength, that I should hope? And what is mine end, that I should prolong my life?"

Jobs there are now among us. They are going about comparing the New England

What has been the good of our strivings now that we are all but done for? There is no consolation. These despairing souls have been ever with us. Their calamitous predictions have been heard before, yet by the new England in some manner has contrived to go on. And it is still going on, pressing forward to even greater achievements than it has hitherto. Its gloom is passing. What those who fill the air with their lamentations fail to comprehend is that the will to do still exists in New England, that the still remaining energy of the fighting spirit is to meet new conditions and continue to build upon the solid foundations of Plymouth.

be found today, only it turns its attention to what anything is. In trying to arrive at a solution of this question, the first experimentation is going on to keep New England thoroughly alive to the possibilities of new things, new processes, new methods. If she loses a cotton mill she has to find some other place to put its place; is in fact already finding it.

Somebody has said that all New England has today is her inherited superiority. If that is so, it is an asset not likely to be recognized. But if, as she has said, if one is looking for ancestors the Pilgrim Fathers, despite all their peculiarities, have much to recommend them. In one respect, however, their descendants have not quite lived up to our expectations. Wherever they were, there have to be a dozen children and no servant, the fashion of their descendants seems to be to have a dozen servants and no children.

Stricken in position then that the United States whereas in the New England State is idle mills! No so: government increase in the nations during the 19th century.

But it is not enough vitality to leaven the general mass. Make no mistake about it. The New England spirit still lives and finds expression even among those who have lands who have taken up their abode here.

One very potent reason why the pessimists who are talking down New England, when they should be talking it up, are doomed to be disappointed in the fulfillment of their prophecy is that the people of New England always have had to battle their way. When the Pilgrims landed on what the poets like to describe as a stern and rockbound coast, they were not only faced privately but were assailed by hostile Indians. History records that in devout spirit they first fell on their knees and then on the aborigines, performing the latter with a determination not wholly phony. They had to fight to the very existence. They could not even attend divine worship without an accompanment of blood." When the Pilgrims came from the New England industry has had content, whereas it is in New England, "new industry." The Pilgrims to attain freedom and liberty of conscience had to overcome every obstacle that stood in the way, and Indians were the chief obstacle. "Don't you know," said one of the brave mothers of that period to her husband as he started off for church with his flintlock on his shoulder, "that it does you no good to carry a gun? All our days are numbered and when your time for death comes you are as powerless to stop it." "Very true," he said, "but who can tell me that I will be the instrument of death by going to determine the time of death of some Indian!"

Not only did these early New Englanders have famine, pestilence and sickness to cope with, but they had the wars, trials and tribulations with the climate. There was then, perhaps even more than now, what Mark Twain described as "a sunniness variety about the New England weather that never was in any other place."

In the spring I had counted 136 kinds of weather in time of twenty-four hours."

But such regard to its compensations. It makes for a hardy race. Californians may extol their climate and minimize their earthquakes. The natives of Florida may rave about their glorious sunshine and forget their hurricanes. The glorious sunshine of the bay for New England and the zip of winter is only Nature's tonic. If we complain of sudden changes the earth seldom shakes beneath our feet, and the winds of our hemisphere are not so strong.

It is worth while living in New England for the climate alone. There is no all monotony about it nor undue excitement.
